Communications specialist focused on structuring complex information and delivering clear, practical solutions

Angèle Chiaroni is Senior Business Partner, Communications at Kellerhals Carrard. She contributes to the firm's communication strategy and works with partners and practice groups on market visibility, strategic communication initiatives and content development.

Her work focuses on structuring complex information and translating legal expertise into clear and coherent content across different channels. She coordinates multi-stakeholder projects and oversees the firm's submissions to leading legal directories and awards.

Angèle has several years of experience in the Swiss legal sector and previously worked in the communications team of another leading Swiss business law firm. Earlier in her career, she held international marketing and project management roles in Hong Kong.
